

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A framework with multiple selections for a south bridge and a north bridge connecting is provided. The up/down controller and PCI response of the south bridge applies the enable or disable and mutual communication theories of the bus arbiter to design various required connections. The labor and cost consumption for redesign under different modes that the peripherals cannot comply with is saved. In addition, the efficiency of internal material flow in manufacture is improved by the chip unification.